FELIX

Hey, man. You talk to Jerry yet?

ALLAN

No, man. No. It's –

FELIX

Why?

ALLAN

It's probably nothing.

FELIX

He had an appraisal done.

ALLAN

It's not nothing.

FELIX

So, dude?

ALLAN

That's his move, man. It's like a tax dodge. He's probably going to, like, sell the building to himself through a company that's owned by his cat or something, man. It's Jerry.

FELIX

Fucking Jerry, man.

ALLAN

No shit.

FELIX

Hey, take care of yourself.

ALLAN

I will. Don't worry. I know Jerry. What about London? You talk to her yet? –

FELIX

Yeah, sort of.

ALLAN

Yeah?

MM

FELIX

I got a look at her Facebook page.

ALLAN

And?

FELIX

Not a lot to go on, to be honest with you, except for a lot of sunsets. She's kind of mysterious, you know?

ALLAN

Yeah, I like that.

FELIX

How?

ALLAN

For you. For you, obviously, dude. Come on. I mean for you. What can I do to help?

FELIX

Oh, well, she's looking for places in Mar Vista.

ALLAN

Oh, dude. That's no good. That's the other side of Lincoln. Now you'll never see her.

FELIX

Yeah. I already feel like I'm losing her.

ALLAN

Well, don't get ahead of yourself. There's plenty of time to lose her.

FELIX

Yeah.

ALLAN

First, you got to get her.

FELIX

It's too soon, man, you know? I haven't gotten to know her well enough to know what it is that I need to pretend to have in common with her.

ALLAN

That's a good point.

MM

FELIX

Yeah. I Plus, what if she doesn't like me?

ALLAN

Oh, dude. Come on. She'll like you. And you know what? If she doesn't, then it's not meant to be.

FELIX

Well, don't say that.

ALLAN

You've just got to have the serenity to accept the things, man.

FELIX

Don't say that either.

ALLAN

And the wisdom to know the difference.

FELIX

And definitely don't say that! You've got a serious platitude problem.
