

JACK

You a religious woman, Rose? I didn't get much religion growing up. Just wasn't an issue in my family. Kinda wishing it had been, y'know. After you've been in a plane crash... Helps to believe in... Something.

ROSE

His fingers swell.

JACK

Sorry?

ROSE

Bernard. My husband. His hands swell up when we fly...

JACK

The altitude --

ROSE

He started having me hold onto his wedding ring whenever we took a plane trip. Always wore it around my neck for safe keeping. Just until we landed, you see... Y'know, Doctor, you don't need to keep your promise.

JACK

Promise?

ROSE

The one you made to me on the plane. To keep me company until my husband got back from the restroom. I'm letting you off the hook.

JACK

Sorry. You're not getting rid of me that easily. Rose... You shouldn't be out here alone. You're suffering from a post-traumatic shock...

ROSE

Aren't we all?

JACK

Yeah. I guess we are.

ROSE

You've got a nice way about you. A good soul. Patient. Caring... I suppose that's why you became a doctor.

JACK

Thanks, but I was just kind of born into it... Family business. Do you have a family, Rose? Kids, I mean... You and Bernard?

ROSE

Mm-hm. Three. All boys.

JACK

Three. That's great. And I'm sure it's important for you to get back to them. They need their mom.

ROSE

I appreciate the thought, Doctor. But my boys are all grown. Kids get to a certain age, you need them more than they need you.

JACK

I don't know about that. Rose... After the sun goes down...

We're burning the fuselage... It's... It's just something we have to do. There's gonna be a memorial service back at the camp. For those who... who didn't make it. A way for everyone to say good-bye.

ROSE

I'd like to be there for that.

JACK

Okay. Maybe... if you'd like to say something... Y'know, about your husband... To say goodbye to him, I'm sure--

ROSE

What?

JACK

I'm just saying... If you want to say goodbye to Bernard-- .

ROSE

Doctor -- My husband's not dead.

JACK

He was in the tail section, Rose. It broke off in mid-flight. I'm sorry, but... Everyone in the rear of the plane's gone.

ROSE

They're probably thinking the same thing about us.
