

MAGGY

Uh, Jimmy, are you having a-a good time?

JIMMY

Absolutely. Just so glad you invited me.

MAGGY

Really?

JIMMY

Of course. Sometimes, well, you just want to witness the beginning of a disaster, so later, when the house is engulfed in flames, you can say, "Yup, I was there when they installed the faulty wiring.

MAGGY

Unbelievable.

JIMMY

Just admit it. You only invited me here so you could passive-aggressively rub my nose in your happiness.

MAGGY

At least I would have had the decency to rub your nose in it directly.

JIMMY

Oh, yes, your commitment to honesty is so refreshing.

MAGGY

It must be so hard being the only one who sees people for what they actually are.

JIMMY

It is. It's incredibly hard.

MAGGY

Well, it's also gonna be what keeps you alone, because you are ugly and unpleasant and honestly, Jimmy, you're not the original you think you are.

JIMMY

I'm not original? Wow! That is hilarious, coming from such a ... No, you're right. This day isn't about me, is it?

MAGGY

What were you gonna say?

JIMMY
Forget it.

MAGGY
No, I'm serious. I really want to know what does the brilliant Jimmy Shive-Overly think about me?