

SARA
Hey!

LIAM
Hey!

SARA
Didn't you wear that yesterday? Fall asleep at a bar?

LIAM
I didn't realize you were paying such close attention.

SARA
I told you to pull it together.

LIAM
And I told you I'd try.

SARA
Remember, I'm not your partner or your girlfriend anymore, and I'm not your friend. I'm your boss.

LIAM
Hmm. You feel a little more like a warden which makes sense, 'cause this place feels like prison.

SARA
You got yourself into trouble, Liam, not me. This is the last place I wanted to see you.

LIAM
Then why bring me here?

SARA
So you could keep your pension and your pride and count down the clock with some semblance of dignity.

LIAM
Mm. Like you are.

SARA
That's not what I'm doing.

LIAM
Oh?

SARA
No woman has gotten higher than the Assistant Director of Quantico. No woman. It doesn't matter what I do. Recruitment numbers are the largest that they've ever been, and I'm still here.

LIAM
The ceiling's only glass till you break it.

SARA
That's exactly the kind of thing that only a man would say. I lost my family to this job.

LIAM
So did I.

SARA
Yeah, but you don't see me drinking myself to death over it, do you? Just giving up 'cause it didn't go your way. I saved you from drowning. I could just as soon toss you back in. Don't forget that, okay?