

Alex: This afternoon, I couldn't decide between a tamale and a tuna melt, but my life made sense.

And now, I know exactly what I want, and my life doesn't make any sense. And I was doing fine this afternoon, I was doing great! That was me then.

But I don't know, somewhere between the tuna melt and your aunt's tamales... and they were really great. I was afraid that I had already met the woman of my dreams at the dry cleaner's or something and I was just too busy to notice.

But now I'm here and I see that that's not true because.. it's you. Isabel, you're the one!

You are everything I never knew I always wanted. I'm not even sure what that means exactly, but I think it has something to do with the rest of my life!

And I think we should get married. Right now!