

Holly: Can you give me a hand with this?

Red: Sure. What do you need?

Holly: I need you to tell me if this is a good idea or not.

Red: That's easy, it's not! That will never work!! No way can that happen! This is absolutely ridiculous and absurd of you to even think about doing something like that! Not happening!!!

Holly: Ok then, that was easy.

Red: You got what you wanted?

Holly: Yep. Thanks.

(Red leaves)

Holly: Wait, come back! I wasn't done.

Red: You weren't?

Holly: No... I actually would like you to think about the possibility of making this happen...like really putting your mind to it and thinking about how we can accomplish this. I want you to tell me how you would make it a reality.

Red: I already told you it's not going to happen, that's the end of the story. Why are you doing this? You're wasting your time.

Holly: I think it will work...and even if we fail at making some things happen, some other things might be possible as well.

Red: How can you be sure?

Holly: I'm not, but it's worth the shot isn't it? What could happen if we actually succeeded? Think about it...and I know you're gonna find me some possibilities that would make this work even though nothing can come of your first 'It will never work' answer.

Red: Ok...

Holly: Really?

Red: Yeah, It's actually kind of fun to think about. Let me see...it could be pretty cool if it worked out. Alright then I'm in! You asked for it; let's show everyone that this will work out after all! Don't ask me why, but I really want to try this.

Holly: Thank you for being my partner in crime! You have no idea how much of a difference your help will make. We are going to rock this, I can feel it!

(Both do a fist bump)

Red: Oh yeah! This is gonna be so cool!!! Let's do it!!!