

JERRY

So did you have fun?

DEV

Oh, that was insane. Thank you so much for bringing me. Hey, can we be real for a second? Your email had a bad joke in it, right? I get it. You take anyone's emails or whatever and you put them under a microscope, you'll find something offensive. But, to me, the bigger issue is, why can't there be two Indian people in the show? You know, why is it me or Ravi? Why can't there be two?

JERRY

Okay, look, I'll be frank with you. If I do a show with two Indian guys on the poster, everyone's gonna think it's an Indian show. It wouldn't be as, you know, relatable to a large mainstream audience.

DEV

Yeah, but you would never say that about a show with two white people. Every show has two white people. People don't say that. People don't watch True Detective and go, "Ooh, there's that white detective show. " You know?

JERRY

But just to be clear, that's not me, okay? That's the public. Jerry Danvers, you know, would love to see two Indian people on a show. Who cares? Right? But, you [sighs] We're just not at that point.

DEV

Well, what if we tried, you know, with me and Ravi, and we just see what happens?

JERRY

Or let's just put you in the show, make a hundred episodes, get a huge syndication deal, and you make 50 to 75 million dollars

DEV

Oh, shit. That's that Schwimmer money.